

MISSION

To eradicate poverty by promoting inclusive and sustainable development in Philippine food systems through agribusiness expertise and collaboration.

VISION

A sustainable and inclusive Philippine food system where smallholder farmers are empowered and poverty is reduced through strong linkages and innovation.

ABOUT US

Foodlink Advocacy Co-operative (FAC) is a talent pool of agribusiness experts and practitioners with a common passion working towards poverty eradication through inclusive and sustainable development in Philippine food systems. FAC is a primary advocacy cooperative duly registered with the Cooperative Development Authority.

OUR PURPOSE

The agricultural sector of the Philippines has long faced structural challenges. Despite vast arable land and a strong agrarian workforce, the country continues to struggle with food insecurity, inefficient supply chains, and persistent rural poverty.

At the Foodlink Advocacy Cooperative (FAC), we believe this is not due to a lack of labor or resources, but to weak market linkages, unequal access to information, and imbalanced power structures. Our mission is to address these gaps by promoting inclusive and sustainable food systems. We recognize smallholder farmers as experts of their own context—valuing their knowledge and integrating them as equal partners in agribusiness, rather than treating them merely as beneficiaries.

What We Do & Our Track Record

Research-for-Development (R4D)

Leveraging the rich experience of our members, we quickly generate in-depth and holistic knowledge materials. Together with partners in the development and academe sectors, we form capable research teams across most parts of the Philippines. We ensure our research activities always contribute to a developmental objective or achieve tangible improvements even as the studies are conducted.

Technical Advisory & Consultancy

We provide expert advisory across all stages of project management—from planning to implementation and exit. We apply rigorous R4D discipline to ensure solutions are resilient, scalable, and suited to agricultural realities. By leveraging the expertise of our members, we support effective execution while preparing clients for long-term, independent success beyond our involvement.

Advocacy & Capacity Building

We serve as resource speakers and trainers for various key players across the food system, covering a wide array of agribusiness topics. We pride ourselves on our ability to translate complex food system concepts into actionable insights for diverse audiences—including farmers, corporate partners, government institutions, and international organizations.

Future Directions: The Strategic Horizon

We advance a systems-based approach to food security by moving beyond reactive, linear “fight hunger” strategies and focusing on access, stability, agency, and sustainability. We drive innovation through “co-opetition,” fostering collaboration among competing private-sector players to create shared value and expand the overall market. We champion locally-led development by shifting from traditional aid toward private-sector-driven investment models that generate revenue while delivering measurable impact on national food security. To keep pace with a rapidly evolving landscape, we also pioneer the use of Artificial Intelligence as a key institutional leverage point, guided by strict standards on transparency and authorship.
